Investigating the hitherto unexplored topic of how young people understand and relate to religious diversity in the social context in which they are growing up, this book makes a significant contribution to the existing body of literature on religious diversity and multiculturalism. It closes a gap in knowledge about young people's attitudes to religious diversity and reports data gathered across the whole of the UK as well as comparative chapters on Canada, USA and continental Europe, reporting findings from both qualitative and quantitative research which reveal, for example, the importance of the particular social and geographical context within which young people are embedded. The volume addresses young people's attitudes towards the range of world religions as well as non-religious stances and offers an interdisciplinary approach through the different analytical perspectives of the contributors.

The politics and practice of religious diversity engages with one of the most characteristic features of modern society: an increasingly prominent and potentially contentious phenomenon. Religious diversity is intimately associated with contemporary issues such as migration, human rights, social cohesion, socio-cultural pluralisation, political jurisdiction, globalisation and reactionary belief systems. This edited collection of specially commissioned chapters provides an unrivalled geographical coverage and multidisciplinary treatment of the socio-political processes and institutional practices provoked by and associated with religious diversity. Alongside chapters treating religious diversity in the BRIC countries of Brazil, Russia, India and China are contributions which discuss Australia, Finland, Mexico, South Africa, the UK and the United States. This book provides an accessible, distinctive and timely treatment of a topic which is inextricably linked with modern society's progressively diverse and global trajectory. Written and structured as an accessible volume for the student reader, this book is of immediate interest to both academics and laypersons working in mainstream and political sociology, sociology of religion, human geography, politics, area studies, migration studies and religious studies.
